Why donate to Global Classrooms ® DC (GCDC)?

- Education program of the United Nations Association of the National Capital Area (UNA-NCA)
- Works with students from grades 5 to 12 in public, public charter, and private schools, as well as homeschool and mentorship groups
- Teaches students how to improve research, writing, public speaking, and negotiation skills
- Expands students’ abilities to make connections between local and international issues
- Aims to build global and cultural awareness and create global citizens
- Program includes a full year of affordable and easy-to-use curriculum and activities and Model UN conferences

Our Impact – By The Numbers

- Over 1,100 middle and high school students
- 105 educators, teachers, parents & group leaders
- 50 groups and schools
- 70 volunteers from universities, government agencies, international organizations, and more
- 30.5% of students attended Title 1 schools, or schools with high percentages of students in low-income families

According to the PayScale’s national employer survey, employers have found that 60% of graduates lack critical thinking and problem-solving skills, and 44% lack leadership abilities. In an increasingly globalized world, the demands on students continue to rise when making moving from classroom to workforce.

Students and teachers identified the top skills that Model UN helped strengthen:

- Leadership: 10.5%
- Problem Solving: 14.4%
- Writing Skills: 17%
- Public Speaking: 18%
- Teamwork: 18.4%
- Research Skills: 21.6%

Student responses to:
"GCDC has provided me with skills that I can use in my classes"

- I feel the same: 13.7%
- Disagree: 11%
- Agree: 85.3%
